The Bread of Life Discourse

Beginning this weekend and for the next four Sundays thereafter, the Church sets aside the Gospel of Mark to which we have been listening, in order to present to us the sixth chapter of St. John's Gospel which is known as The Bread of Life Discourse. It is added not just because the brevity of Mark's Gospel requires some additional material to fill the liturgical year (which is true enough); more significantly, this material is among the most important in all of Scripture for us Catholics and forms the basis for our understanding of the Holy Eucharist.

The Bread of Life Discourse begins with St. John's account of the miracle of the multiplication of the loaves and fish which is one of Jesus' miracles recorded by all four Gospel writers. The first part of St. John's Gospel is known as the Book of Signs in which he describes in detail seven great miracles performed by Jesus. Later on in his Gospel St. John mentions that Jesus worked many other miracles as well, but clearly each of the seven is used to highlight a particular facet of the mystery of Christ. So immediately we know that this miracle is directly connected with Jesus' teaching in the synagogue at Capernaum that follows in which Jesus refers to himself as the Bread of Life. The language St. John uses in describing the miracle is so reminiscent of the words used by Matthew, Mark, Luke, and St. Paul to describe the institution of the Eucharist at the Last Supper which tells us that this miracle is a great foreshadowing of the Most Blessed Sacrament of Christ's Body and Blood. But besides all the magnificent theological symbolism and understanding this account provides, there is a lot of practical advice for us here as well.

First, there is the contrast between Philip and Andrew. When the Lord tests Philip by asking him, "Where can we buy enough food for them to eat," Philip despairs, "Two hundred days wages worth of food would not be enough for each of them to have a little." But Andrew, despite his doubts, brings the boy who has five barley loaves and two fish to Jesus and trusts in him. We too must have the faith not to become dispirited when things get tough and the odds by human standards are against us, but rather to trust always in the Lord.

Second, there is the boy himself. Even though he did not have much to offer, he was willing to give everything he had to Jesus. Without him, there may have been one less miracle, one less great deed in human history. It teaches us that Jesus needs and uses what we bring him. It may not seem like much, but when we lay ourselves on the altar of his service, there is no telling what he can do with us and through us.

Finally, there is Christ's instruction to pick up the leftovers which teaches us that material resources are gifts of God and should never be wasted. One of the major themes in our Holy Father Pope Francis' recent encyclical on the environment *Laudato Si'*⁷ Pope Paul VI also commented on this detail in his Address to the World Food Conference in 1974 when he said, "After liberally feeding the crowd, the Lord told his disciples to gather up what was left over, lest anything should be lost. What an excellent lesson in thrift ... for our age, given as it is to wastefulness! It carries with it the condemnation of a whole concept of society wherein consumption tends to become an end in itself, with contempt for the needy, and to the detriment, ultimately, of those very people who believed themselves to be its beneficiaries, having become incapable of perceiving that man is called to a higher destiny."

Remember, in the hands of Christ, a little can go a very long way.

Who is St. Peter Chrysologus?

Peter was born in Imola, where Cornelius, bishop of Roman Catholic Diocese of Imola, baptized him, educated him, and ordained him a deacon. He was made an archdeacon through the influence of Emperor Valentinian III. Pope Sixtus III appointed Peter as Bishop of Ravenna in 433.

People knew Saint Peter Chrysologus, the Doctor of Homilies, for his short but inspired talks; he supposedly feared boring his audience. His piety and zeal won universal admiration. After hearing oratory of his first homily as bishop, Roman Empress Galla Placidia supposedly gave him the surname Chrysologus, meaning "golden-worded."

His surviving works attest to the Church's traditional beliefs about Mary's perpetual virginity, the penitential value of Lent, Christ's Eucharistic presence, and the primacy of St. Peter and his successors. He shared the confidence of Saint Pope Leo I the Great (440-461), another doctor of the Church. St Peter died circa the year 450 during a visit to Imola, the town of his birth. His feast day is July 30th

FREE SAT PREP FOR JUNIORS

Bishop Kearney is proud to be the only Catholic High School in Brooklyn to partner with CollegeSpring to offer free SAT preparation & college mentoring resources for our entire junior class. Students in CollegeSpring's programs expand their college options through significant SAT score increases; they also gain the college knowledge they need to put scores into action and apply to colleges and universities that will be a good fit.

We are excited to offer this resource, valued at $1,100 per student for no charge to all juniors through the generosity of the Heckscher Foundation for Children. Learn more at www.collegespring.org.

IMPORTANT: SAFE ENVIRONMENT

St. Mark Parish complies with the Safe Environment mandates that are set forth by the Diocese of Brooklyn and the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.

All teachers, volunteers, coaches, scout leaders, etc., all employees and volunteers who have any contact with children, must attend a VRITUS training workshop; sign a Code of Conduct, and agree to a background check.

The workshops are free. For more information:
www.virtus.org

The Diocese of Brooklyn does everything possible to assure that everyone, particularly children, are safe in all pastoral functions and settings.

Volunteers needed

Catechists/instructors are needed to work with the children a few hours a week on Sundays beginning in September to help them learn about God.

Helpers age 16 and older are always welcome to help in the office on Sundays. Please leave your name and phone number at 718-769-6311.
